President’s Report

Vol. 3 Part II

September 2011

Wisconsin's wolves are the same species that are categorized as a single population. Accordingly, as a single population and must be managed as a single population. Accordingly, as a single population, wolves act and behave like the species that was listed in 1978, and are most closely associated with the gray wolf. Recent genetic analyses refute the existence of Eastern wolves as a separate species. Wisconsin's wolves are managed as a single population. Accordingly, our message to the USFWS is clear and strong: Don’t muddy the waters with this indefensible two-population concept. We need a solid, defensible, delisting proposal, and we need it now.

Minnesota, Michigan, the U.S. Sportsmen’s Alliance, the Wisconsin Wildlife Federation, Defenders of Wildlife, the Natural Resources Defense Council, prominent scientists actively working with wolf genetics, and other organizations and government agencies support Wisconsin's position: Wisconsin has a gray wolf population that has successfully recovered. The public grew weary of the delays and government inaction. They need to know that their state DNR is pushing for Wisconsin residents who are seriously concerned with the unchallenged and unmanaged growing wolf population. That’s a promise.

The DFOW is a state-wide affiliate of the Wildlife Federation. It is dedicated to protecting the natural resources of Wisconsin. The DFOW was formed in 1971 and has a membership of over 3,000. It is made up of hunters, anglers, trappers, and other outdoor enthusiasts. The DFOW is an advocate for the protection of Wisconsin's natural resources and works to ensure that they are preserved for future generations.

The DFOW is involved in various projects and initiatives to protect Wisconsin's wildlife and natural resources. These include the management of hunting and fishing seasons, the protection of threatened and endangered species, and the development of public lands for outdoor recreation.

The DFOW also works to promote responsible gun ownership and safety. It offers programs such as the Hunter Education Program and the Wildlife Safety Program to educate individuals about the importance of responsible gun ownership and safety.

The DFOW is supported by a variety of funding sources, including membership dues, donations, and sponsorships. It relies on the support of its members to continue its important work.

The Wisconsin Wildlife Federation is committed to protecting Wisconsin's natural resources and ensuring that they are enjoyed by all. It is dedicated to the preservation of Wisconsin's wildlife and recognizes the importance of protecting fish and wildlife habitat.

Wisconsin's wildlife is a vital part of our natural heritage. It provides us with food, fiber, and recreation, and it is an important part of our economy. It is our responsibility to protect Wisconsin's wildlife and natural resources for future generations.

The estimated 50,000 or more waterfowl hunting dogs whose favorite hunting partner has four legs, a tail, and doesn't mind swimming in snot-filled ponds, continues to be the topic of discussion as hunting pressure increases across the state. The consent decree requires Caterpillar to replace 31,000 engine injector and fuel map settings. In some cases, it will install new “low emissions” valves or valve packing material, designed to significantly reduce emissions of volatile organic compounds (VOCs) and hazardous air pollutants (HAPs). The consent decree is subject to a 30-day comment period and final approval by the court.

Caterpillar Inc. to Pay $2.55 Million to Resolve Clean Air Act Violations

July 28, 2011

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) and the U.S. Department of Justice (DOJ) announced a settlement with Caterpillar Inc. to resolve alleged Clean Air Act violations for shipping more than 500,000 highway and municipal diesel engines without the correct emissions controls.

The consent decree requires Caterpillar to pay a $2.55 million penalty, continue the fuel injector and fuel map settings. In some cases, it will install new “low emissions” valves or valve packing material, designed to significantly reduce emissions of volatile organic compounds (VOCs) and hazardous air pollutants (HAPs).

Caterpillar allegedly shipped over 590,000 engines to vehicle assemblers without the correct ATDs and with improperly configured fuel injector and fuel map settings. In some cases, the miscalculated emissions controls were incorporated into vehicles which resulted in excess emissions of NOx and particulate matter, according to the exhaust.
